

CHINESE CALLIGRAPHY: CHI 3403 (section 004A) University of Florida, Spring 2017

Class Meetings: Tuesday period 10 and Thursday periods 10-11 at Pugh Hall 120

Instructor: Ruth Sheng (Email, rsheng@ufl.edu; Phone, 352-273-2955 or 392-2422)

Office and Hours: 310 Pugh Hall; Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday 3:00-4:00

COURSE OBJECTIVES

Being one of the most revered arts in China, calligraphy (the art of writing -- 書法 shufa) has been an essential part of Chinese culture. This course is designed to introduce the importance of calligraphy in its development intergrated with Chinese art, history and culture, with emphasis on incorporating calligraphy into the more comprehensive objective of achieving cultural proficiency. Consequently this class provides students the opportunity not only to learn how to appreciate and to write Chinese calligraphy, but also to understand how the calligraphy intertwining with various aspects of culture element in China and its influence to the neighboring countries such as Japan and Korea.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

In addition to the various scripts of calligraphy, students are introduced to many related subjects: the origin and evolution of Chinese writing system, the historical development and aesthetic principles of Chinese calligraphy, well-known inscriptions on steles/epitaphic stones, writings on scrolls and/or album leaves by major artists, as well as the calligraphy's close relationships with painting and poetry. Persistent hands-on practice is required of all students; there are in-class practice and weekly take-home assignments modeled upon the instructor's demonstration and conventional model books. Individual instructions are given in the classroom on the regular basis as well as provided in the office at student's request.

READING

Chinese Calligraphy: an introduction of its aesthetic and technique by Chiang Yee (Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 1973), although an earlier publication, covers essential and brief information on the aesthetic principles and technical skills on the subject. Chinese Calligraphy compiled by Ouyang Zhongshi and Wen Fong (New Haven and London: Yale University Press, 2008) offers the most detailed information on the evolution of various scripts and historical development of calligraphic styles. Most of the weekly reading assignments are cited from these two resources. In addition, a comprehensive list of bibliography is provided and attached at the end of this course syllabus. Every item included on the list can be found in the Fine Arts Library and many are placed "on reserve." The frequent use of these books, which contain numerous fine reproductions of calligraphy, is highly encouraged. Also check UF "e-Learning in Canvas" for many assigned readings.

COURSE FORMAT

This course combines lectures with visual materials, discussions of reading and/or visual evidence, as well as hands-on practice with brush and ink. The lectures are usually given during the meetings on Tuesday, while the hands-on practice, discussion on readings, and vedio sessions are taken place mostly on Thursday. Students should be aware that the information covered in lecture is not always available from your readings, and there is no substitute for better learning in calligraphy than observing the instructor's demonstration and benefiting from the individual instruction and guidance received in class. To attend all class meetings is, therefore, essential and strongly advised.

REQUIREMENTS AND GRADING

Class attendance(15%) and participation(5%) - Perfect attendance is rewarded with bonus points, while the non-excused absence and tardiness adversely affects your grade (one point deduction for each unexcused absence & half point for the tardiness). 10 non-excused absences results in a failing grade. Absences are permitted for medical reasons, school related activities, and the matters of emergency. Fulfilling the reading assignments with participation in the class are encouraged. Good attitude and enthusiasm are required for the in-class practice and counted for participation.

Take home calligraphy assignments (20%) - Be responsible for completing the assigned weekly homework practice, and turn in on time in order to receive proper credit. The guideline and content of the weekly assignments are given in the class as well as posted on the UF e-Learning in Canvas.

Paper assignment (10%) - Choose one article or a chapter from reading assignments to write a review/critique paper. The structure of the paper should begin with a gist of your reading piece as the introduction, proceed with your comments and responses/critiques or questions as the main body, sum up with a conclusion, and at the end list a brief bibliography (works cited from the other sources in your writing). The purpose of this assignment is to urge you to read critically and to read diligently as soon as the class begins. Although the due date is March 2, you are encouraged to turn it in as early as possible (awarded with bonus point). Only three pages is required, and it should be done with normal margin, 1.5/double spacing. Turn in a hard copy in the class and online file via email attachment.

Class presentation (10%) - Prepare and perform a 15 minutes class presentation on your choice of topic, in the categories such as "Where to Locate Asian Calligraphy," "My Favorite Calligrapher," "Calligraphy and Painting," etc. Preferably it is conducted as a group presentation (2-3 students). The format is open choice, but to discuss the potential topic with instructor is required.

Exam (25%) - One exam is given in the format of multiple choices, script and image identifications/ comparisons, and essay. Make-up exam allows only with medical documentation.

Quizzes (10%) - Expect many quizzes throughout the semester, and no make-up allowed.

Final piece (5%) - Towards the end of semester, students need to submit at least one piece of presentable work of calligraphy for the class exhibition on April 18 (the last day of class).

Each student will receive the best grade one deserves:

Grading scale - Grades are tabulated on a 100-point scale and a letter grade is assigned as follows:

A = 93 & above, A- = 90-92, B+ = 87-89, B = 83-86, B- = 80-82, C+ = 77-79,
C = 73-76, C- = 70-72, D+ = 67-69, D = 63-66, D- = 60-62, E = 59 & below
