Course description

This course is a continuation of intermediate Akan 1 and continues to emphasize linguistic and cultural proficiency through the use of authentic written materials which cover topics such as Christmas, family, proverbs, and songs. Students are introduced to proverbs, which form an important part of Akan oral competence.

Course objectives

At the end of the course students should be able to talk and argue about the pros and cons of basic issues such as family systems, compare cultural events in Ghana and their respective local communities. They should also be able to tell stories, and to use proverbs appropriately in their narratives. Finally, they should be able to undertake a project work in which they showcase their knowledge of Akan language and culture.

Course Requirements

Grading for this course is based on a combination of class attendance, homework, a midterm test, oral presentations and four projects. There will not be a final exam for this course. The details of the project will be discussed in detail. Together, the projects will constitute 40% of the grade.

Class attendance and Participation	5%
Homework	20%
Song translation	15%
Projects (written& Oral)	40%
Final project and Presentation	20%

Academic Integrity:

Please help contribute to an atmosphere of academic integrity by reviewing the Academic Honesty Guidelines for the University of Florida (<http://www.aa.ufl.edu/aa/Rules/4017.htm>). Note that cheating is defined as improper use of information or material that will be used to determine your grade. This includes not only using other people's work without giving appropriate credit. It also includes giving your work to another student to be used or copied. Please take particular care to give credit to other people's work by using proper citation regardless of whether the information is oral or written, published or unpublished, copyrighted or not copyrighted.

Special Notes:

If you would benefit from any special classroom accommodations because of a temporary or permanent disability, please discuss this with the instructor as soon as possible. The University of Florida requires that students who request classroom accommodation register with the Dean of Student Office (P202 Peabody Hall, 392-1261). The Dean of Student office will provide documentation that the student must then give to the instructor. Please be aware that students can also access counseling and consultation services at the University of Florida Counseling Center when facing personal, academic, or career challenges (<http://www.counsel.ufl.edu/>, 392-1575).
